judgeship
hopefuls agree on problems

By CATHERINE SCHUTZ

The two candidates for Municipal Court judge agree that the court is extremely overcrowded and have different proposals for dealing with the problem. Nevertheless, there appear to be more similarities than differences between Loren Straughn, 49, a Richland attorney for 20 years, and Sam Mesnick, 54, a county assistant attorney for 23 years.

The two are in a runoff election for judge of the Bay Municipal Court District, which serves all of Contra Costa County.

The Municipal Court handles misdemeanor cases from arraignment to sentencing, and holds the preliminary hearings for felonies. Other duties include traffic cases, small claims, civil cases up to $15,000.

The two attorneys met at a candidates night recently sponsored by the Rock-Hilltop Neighborhood Association. It was their first appearance together since the June primary, which Mesnick was the top vote-getter with 14,539 votes, or 34.6 percent of the total, while Straughn tallied 11,772, or 25.6 percent.

Straughn and Mesnick agree on several basic issues facing the local court system, but differ on some of the means of handling the problems:

Both say they would set high bail and impose stiff sentences, particularly for repeat offenders. Mesnick pointed out that Proposition 4, which was approved by the voters in June, allows judges to set bail based on both the seriousness of the offense and the background of the suspect.

Previously, judges could only consider whether the suspect was likely to show up for the court appearances as expected to flee.

Both agree that Municipal Court is overcrowded and that judges spend much time handling minor cases, such as traffic tickets, that more serious cases are delayed.

Minor cases drag on even longer, as criminal cases take priority. Mesnick said there were 65,000 cases in the Municipal Court in 1981. He noted that a traffic commissioner handles all minor traffic cases for two central county judicial districts, and says the Bay Municipal Court should urge the county to create a commissioner position here.

Straughn agreed that traffic cases are time consuming, but said the commissioner proposal was impractical.

Women on the river

By ROBERTA ALEXANDER

EL CERRITO — Donna Hunter stepped off her "career ladder" and onto a raft on the tumultuous California rivers.

Hunter, 39, is the founder and co-owner of Mariah Wilderness Expeditions, the first woman-owned whitewater raft company in California.

"Starting this business was a matter of personal growth for me," said Hunter from the dining room of the El Cerrito home she shares with her partner, Shelley Barclay, and another person.

For many years a social worker in San Diego, Hunter grew bored with her bureaucratic job.

"I had a two-year midlife crisis," she recalled. "I wanted to do something more creative, and I looked to private industry because I wanted the chance to make more money."

Long a lover of the outdoors, Hunter stressed that she was not a jock.

"I'm not what you call athletic, but I've gone backpacking in the Sierras for years, and done a lot of sailing and ocean cruising," she said. "Seven years ago I developed a passion for rafting."

Darker streets to save money

Council ok's dimming lights

By STEPHEN BUEL

ALBANY — The City Council has approved a trial plan to reduce the street lighting on two blocks of San Pablo Avenue, in order to see if the city can save money and live with less light.

Robert Guletz, director of public works, was given permission to try two different methods of decreasing the lighting along the avenue which is also known as state route 123 — on the two blocks from Monroe to Dartmouth and Solano to Buchanan.

Between Solano and Buchanan the city will turn off every other light fixture, except at intersections. Six lights in all will be shut down. The lights to be turned off will be staggered so the reduction in lighting is uniform, and no dark spots are created.

Along the block from Monroe to Dartmouth, the city will replace all of the existing 400 watt sodium lamps with lower output 250 watt lamps. A total of 10 lamps will be replaced. Lighting output will be reduced by 45 percent, according to Guletz.

"We have received public comments for years that San Pablo Avenue is brighter than necessary," Guletz wrote the council. "These tests would give us a chance to determine if a lower level of lighting is acceptable to the motorists, residents and the police department."

If successful, the two tests could be applied to the entire lengths of San Pablo and Buchanan. According to Guletz's projections, the two methods of reduction would save the city from $4,450 to $5,426 a year, if applied to the full length of San Pablo. Further savings could be expected in the future years, as electricity rates increase.

Guletz said street lighting along San Pablo Avenue accounts for 25 percent of the city's total street lighting budget, or $28,300 a year.

Each choice has its benefits and drawbacks. Conversion to new, lower

The 'quiet' saints around us

(On Sundays this column features articles written by members of the local clergy. Anyone whose church or temple serves people in Albany, El Cerrito, Kensington, Thousand Oaks or north Berkeley may contribute a column. Contact the editor for details: 525-2644. This week's column is by the Rev. Kenneth Barnes, pastor of the Arlington Community Church in Kensington.)

By REV. KENNETH BARNES

A question recently was asked, "Where are the saints of the church?" I reflected on that question and readily admitted that they were usually not out catching headlines or involved in "newsworthy" heroics.

But as one who has now served local congregations for 16 years I daily witness to the lives and deeds of the saints. Saints going about their task in quiet ways; saints who would be embarrassed if the title were used on them; but they are saints none the less. The divine power flows from them changing and affecting the lives of others.

Listed below are some of the types, composites in some cases, of persons who have been "doing the Lord's word."

That person who refuses to "fulfill his professional potential" at the cost of his or her truly human potential as a father and husband or mother and wife.

That person who, though in actual pain, continues to look to the needs of others.

That person who, facing a difficult decision, refuses to decide merely on the basis of prudence or to rationalize her qualms.

That person who, having raised a family, been involved in the myriad of activities which engulf a mother, still retains her love of children and volunteers to tutor at a local school.

That person who, in spite of bitter disappointments, still praise God as the giver of all good gifts.

That person who fundamentally alters his or her life-style and ambitions by refusing to abandon an older relative.

the job," she said.

"There hasn't ever been another woman," she said, and then she paused, sighed and said, "and that's a challenge."

At the mission conferences, representatives from up to 15 Protestant denominations and a number of Catholic churches meet to discuss world issues "in a religious sense instead of a political or economic sense."

"It's not a policy-making conference at all," Walter said. "It's a consciousness-raising organization."

"We raise consciousness so people go home from the conference and do something."

Rafters move onto the rivers

Hunter's passion led her to working as a weekend guide for rafting trips run by other river companies and eventually to an association with a male friend who had bought a rafting company.

The number of county-issued permits for each river is limited, and the permit is sold along with a company. Last year Hunter teamed up with Barclay, 32, formerly the director of the now-defunct Women in the Wilderness, a non-profit organization.

The two bought Ponderosa River Tours, which not only gave them river permits, but also two campgrounds, one "civilized" and one wilderness-type. They renamed their organization Mariah (after the wind) and set up a schedule of trips.

Mariah provides all the rafting equipment and food for a trip. Costs average $65 a day per person. The company has a variety of boats, but most rafts seat six or seven.

Recently Mariah did its second annual trip for women over 35, a five-day raft trip on the Rogue River in Oregon. Hunter said that trip included storytelling around the campfire with tales of the women who lived along the river in frontier days.

"We looked at ancient myths, fairy tales and poetry that tell us something about being women" at mid-life, Hunter explained.

Another all-women trip is planned for New Year's Eve: down the Rio Grande in Texas.

Mariah also runs trips for couples, mixed groups and families. Their tours for both mother-daughter groups and father-son groups have been so popular that father-daughter and mother-son trips are also being planned. They even run a gourmet rafting trip (which includes a Yucatan wedding feast, complete with roast suckling pig).

Hunter said that some companies or organizations have purchased weekend charter packages; "they'll bus people up from Los Angeles to do this."

Hunter believes that her combination of administrative know-how and rafting experience provide a strong background for Mariah.

"Most people on a raft trip know that this is hot sun and cool water. That's all they have to know, but I've learned a lot more than that," Hunter said. "I've flipped, wrapped (in which the raft bumps into something and needs to be pulled off) and done rescues."

Hunter says that the caliber of guides on local rivers is "incredible," and that one of the fledgling company's projects is to run guide clinics, in which experienced rafters are trained to lead others.

Her counseling experience comes in handy on the riverbanks, Hunter says.

"Some of the customers freak out," she said. "A guide has to be alert, and know how to deal with people's fears."

She particularly enjoys the all-women trips, she says, because she can see some of the participants expand their horizons and increase their self-confidence as the trip progresses.

"I try to provide a safe and supportive environment for women to discover their own inner strength. This is a chance for them to be without their normal support systems and this gives them a new sense of self. They go back to their lives a little bit stronger," she said.

In practice, this means that a woman who is used to leaning on a man for support and advice has to adjust to leaning on, and supporting, other women. This process represents as much of a challenge for Hunter as it does for some of her clients.

"I was almost reluctant to do my first all-women trip because I thought we needed men," she said. "My fear was really about whether I could lead such a trip."

When she discovered she could, she wanted to do more, and by the time the first trip had sold out, there was a waiting list for the second.

Since rafting is primarily a spring and summer activity, Hunter and Barclay also plan — perhaps next year — to offer cross-country skiing trips as well. For the present, Barclay handles the books and the reservations and Hunter the promotion and the camp set-up.

They run trips on the American, Merced and Klamath Rivers "and," said Hunter, "I want to open new rivers."

tive to institutional care.

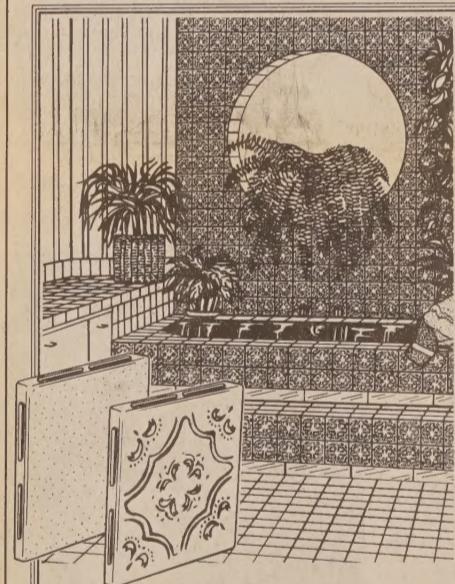

That person who, though viciously slandered and misunderstood, refuses to become discouraged or fight back.

That person who, following the developments in a Third World country, is moved to organize action in the same manner as if it were an injustice occurring down the street.

All those who stand by promises and commitments made in good faith, who remain loyal to friends, who are truthful in conversation, who are alert to opportunities for helping others — especially the small and weak.

These are the forces with the Christian fellowship. Some complain about the hypocrites in the church. There may well be some and their actions can speak loudly. But thanks be to God for the saints whose number is great!

Happy birthday to us...

Today, Oct. 3, is the third birthday of the Times Journal, as the message on one of our video display terminals indicates. In that time we've gone from obscurity to recognition, from typewriters to computers and from publishing once a week to twice. We're proud of what we've accomplished and want to thank all of those people in Albany, El Cerrito, and Thousand Oaks who've been part of those communities and what happened. And we thank all the local businesses advertised in the Times Journal and of this possible. OK, let's cut the cake.

cal because the county will not provide the money.

He preferred a plan in which an individual could enter a plea in a traffic case by mail, rather than having to appear in court. The court clerk would then assign a court date by mail, at which point the individual would actually appear before a judge for the first time.

"Mailing the 'not guilty' plea in takes the matter off the court calendar," Straughn said.

He proposed eliminating the pre-trial conference as another way of speeding up the court calendar.

He said that from his perspective as an attorney, "not much is accomplished" by having the prosecution and defense attorneys meet with a judge at the outset of a case. The same work could be done on the telephone, he said.

Mesnick said that judges should not agree to requests from attorneys for lengthy continuances.

Saying that "one of the greatest (defense) methods is to stall," Mesnick said dragging cases out for months "causes problems with witnesses" who gradually forget details that they are asked to remember when a case finally comes to trial.

"Any place where the judges have gotten stiff on continuance the calendar has moved faster," he said.

• Both agree that the probation process, an integral part of the Municipal Court system, is also overburdened. Mesnick said that probation officers have between 300 and 400 cases to supervise, and that the case-theme" of the conference was People of the Pacific Islands and the "theological theme" was Christian Unity.

Next summer's themes will be central Africa (not including the Sahara or South Africa) and "The World's Uprooted."

The two themes "fit together very well," Walter said. "You really can't separate the theological gospel from the social gospel."

The main speaker at last summer's conference was Rev. Dr. Sione 'Amanaki Havaea, from Tonga. Walter said he is the principal of "the one and only theological seminary in the Pacific Islands."

Walter said Havaea talked about several issues, including nuclear waste dumping in the Pacific Islands and the United Nations' failure to sign the United Nations Law of the Sea treaty outlining fishing rights.

"Understand, when he talks, he's not just criticizing," Walter said, twisting a piece of paper in her hands. "He affirms the contributions of the Peace Corps and other groups."

One effect of the conferences, Walter said, is to make her more aware of all the aspects of world issues, and thus less sure of her opinions.

Since the conference on the Middle East, she said, "I don't have an absolute conviction about who's right and who's wrong over there — I know too much."

Walter said the "theological theme" of church unity was especially important now.

"The Lutheran and Episcopal churches came to a great conclusion last week," she said. "They can take communion in each other's churches — and that's a big step."

As president, Walter said, she will "conduct board meetings, executive meetings and financial committee meetings — the whole administrative bit."

Her husband Frank, a retired army colonel and press relations officer for the Atomic Energy Commission, sometimes acts as a spokesman for the World Christian Mission. He said Walter's new job, while a step up, was somewhat less demanding than the work she did last year as dean of the conference.

"She's sort of the pivot, but she's not as involved as the dean," he said.

"The dean runs the conference. The president runs the board that runs the conference."

"The president gets involved in emergencies. Her major role is to hold it all together and be available if problems arise that people in charge of the different areas can't handle. That very seldom happens."

Walter, who is 58, said she couldn't remember when she wasn't involved in church work.

"My mother always took me to Ladies' Aid meetings with her and I sat quietly beside her," she said. "When people ask me how I can sit through long meetings, I tell them 'my mother taught me to sit still.'

Walter said she had never worked full-time outside the home, though she has been a part-time church secretary. When her children Gregory, 31, and Mary Margaret (Mimi) 37, were young, she was involved in the church work which led her to her present position.

The more she did, the more she was called on to do. Rev. David Slope said church leaders "naturally turned to her for minor offices at first, and finally for president. It was kind of a natural progression."

This summer, Walter led a tour of China, a role which also came naturally to her.

"My family were... think that's kind of a... to motion to people... their life fuller." "I'm just impressed person like that," she said. "She still a good cook, which people who... areas don't... elect to... It's a sign of the opposite sex is making fields," he said. "That anybody can... to be if they just... pening on all front... 15...

Asian art auction today in El Cerrito

EL CERRITO — The sixth annual Asian American Art Exhibit and Auction, set for today, Sunday, Oct. 3, offers a variety of original works by northern California artists.

The only auction of its kind, the Asian American art auction is a collection of artworks ranging from traditional Japanese brush paintings to modern abstract sculptures. The show will be held from 1 to 9 p.m. at the El Cerrito Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane. Proceeds from the event benefit the Japanese-speaking elderly of the East Bay.

"Aesthetics is an integral part of life" co-chairperson Amy Shinsako says about Asian culture. Co-chair Sharon Date adds, "We started the art auction as a way of maintaining Asian culture and sharing it with the general public." Begun in 1976, the art auction provides an opportunity to purchase unique paintings, ceramics, sculptures, graphics, and other works at below gallery price.

The bidding for the live auction begins at 7 p.m. This year, Peter Fairbanks of Butterfield Auctioneers will open the biddings. Joining the stage with Fairbanks are Judge Ken Kawauchi, Superior Court judge of Alameda Court; Jean Siri, Mayor of El Cerrito; Ben Takeshita, vice-president of the Japanese American Citizens League (JACL); and Ron Wakabayashi, national director of JACL.

The art exhibit and auction is an all-day event featuring ethnic foods, prizes and the silent auction. The silent auction, a separate event, is an auction of gift certificates, gourmet items, professional services, and artworks.

Sakura Kai and East Bay Japanese for Action co-sponsor this event to fund social services and recreational programs for the elderly. Sakura Kai offers trips, weekend programs and health-screening clinics for the elderly. EBJA has provided transportation, translation, and a hot lunch program and other social services since the 1970's.

City streets darker

 City would save the city more than $10,000 in the long run, but take nine years to pay for itself. Shutting off all lights entirely would tend to save energy, but would cost in just one month. Gu-letz said he now favors conversion to watt bulbs.

Through the proposal was approved little discussion from the council, any bit of council resistance surprised him. "I like the idea," Kruse said. "Everything I read says that the crime rate goes up when your energy decreases."

The tests were approved for a two week duration. Guleitz said that the duration of the tests will involve representatives of his office, the police department and PG&E.

"We've been talking about this for years," he said, "and we should put the matter to rest."

The city now pays PG&E about $20 per pole for lighting, Guleitz said.
 Roughly $8 of that are for actual energy costs, he said, with the remaining 12 going for pole rental.

In the long run, Guleitz said the city could save money by buying the poles outright from PG&E, as the city of Berkeley has done. He said he plans to make such a proposal to the council at some point in the future.

In other action:

The council voted unanimously to restore some of the city clerk's clerical assistance.

If your birthday is today, Oct. 3:

In the year following your birthday, the type of associates you choose will make the difference in whether you meet with success or failure. Team up with persons of substance and discipline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Dec. 23)

You have the ability to make good, quick judgments today, but you may lack faith in your decisions and weigh and balance them to the point where you fall to act at all.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Don't let material situations be so important to you today that they could tempt you to do something not in accordance with your high standards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Try to avoid groups or cliques today where you may have to rub shoulders with someone who caused you a problem in the past. The wound has not yet healed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You're rather capable today, but you do have your limitations. Take care not to attempt more than you can comfortably manage.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Should you find yourself in a situation today where your views or opinions are challenged, back out gracefully instead of trying to get in the last word.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Your possibilities for personal gain are good today, but you may have to overcome some stiff obstacles to get what you feel you fully deserve.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Be careful who you tease today. Not all persons with whom you'll associate will appreciate your sense of humor. You could cause hurt feelings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Before volunteering to sort something out for another today, be sure it's something you understand and can handle with ease.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Friends will take your promises and commitments seriously today, so don't agree to do something unless you plan to follow through.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

You're a good worker today, provided you can move at your own pace and aren't too closely supervised. Your productivity slackens when the bosses appear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Beware of tendencies today to take too seriously things which should be fun. You'll spoil the activities for yourself and others if you get upright or grouchy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Today you might look upon things which others have as yours, but you may not take it too kindly if they want you to share what you have with them.

If your birthday is Monday, Oct. 4:

This coming year you are likely to have several opportunities which could open up channels for a second source of income. Make the most of what develops.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Be firm as well as practical in your commercial or business dealings today. Don't be pressured into acting before you are ready to move.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

In a situation today requiring a team effort your role may be that of a subordinate, yet the part you'll play will still be significant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Take extra pains with your work today and let your motto be, "If I'm going to do something, I'm going to do it right." Pride evokes a better performance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Should you meet someone new in a social happening today, strive to establish a good foundation for a future relationship. This contact could prove to be important.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Begin the week by putting the finishing touches on projects or ventures begun last week. Once they're out of the way, you'll be free to explore new avenues.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Your mental facilities are keen today. You're good at weighing facts, figures and proposals offered to you. Rely upon your analytical abilities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

The key to starting the week off on the right foot is to set your sights on projects which can bring you steady, solid growth. Forget the get-rich-quick schemes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

What you'll get out of today will be in exact proportion to what you put into it. The quality of your efforts will determine the value of your rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Even you have to get off by yourself sometimes in order to recharge your energies. This may be one of those days where solitude is necessary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

This is a good day to begin laying the foundation for things which can make your life easier. From a strong base, the future can be substantially built.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Impatience could be your greatest enemy today. Take things a step at a time and, when the day is over, you'll be surprised at how much you have achieved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

When developing plans today, be equally concerned about the future as well as the present. Consider the time required to reach your target.

Daphne shrub will bud but not bloom

We have a small, healthy daphne shrub grown from a slip and each year it grows larger and develops a small number of buds which never open into blooms. Why, is there something that should be done for it?

If you are feeding this daphne with a nitrogen content fertilizer such as fish emulsion, stop it immediately, and begin feeding it with an 0-10-10 fertilizer from August until it stops blooming and then begin the nitrogen fertilizer during the growing season. The nitrogen fertilizer keeps the plant in a growing state and it doesn't stop to bloom; secondly, begin slowing down on the watering beginning in August. By this I don't mean to stop watering it, but extend the period between waterings, if you are watering it weekly, wait ten days, then extend the period to two weeks and so on until the rains come. The 0-10-10 fertilizer will stop leaf growth but will encourage the buds to set and bloom; do this every three weeks and your daphne will bloom next spring.

How do you fight white flies? They ruined our beans and other vegetables last year and have done the same again this year. We even sprayed early this year which we have never done before.

White flies are a persistent pest and spraying is really the only control but the spraying must be done in the early evening after they have settled down on the host plant to roost for the night. Take a stick and walk through the garden disturbing the plants and as the white flies swarm out, spray the plant thoroughly, the upper and undersides of the leaves. For vegetables you can use Malathion and Metaxachlor and make certain to read the directions for its use and the time table for harvesting after use, and for ornamental plants, spray with the new biological spray called 'Orthene'. Also, you can hang the 'White Fly Sticky Bars', they're a take-off from the old-fashioned fly paper. They are yellow in color, the yellow is an attractant to the flies and lures them to the sticky ribbons hanging from the plants.

My compost has thousands of sowbugs in it. Are these bad for the garden, or do they eat only decaying vegetation?

It's not infest your garden with sowbugs in it. They turn green with
